PRESTIGIOUS AWARD WIN FOR A MALAYSIAN PORT AT THE WORLD PORTS CONFERENCE

International Association of Ports & Harbours was delighted to announce the winners of the IAPH 2022 Sustainability Awards during the official gala dinner of the IAPH World Ports Conference, which has taken place on Tuesday evening local time with 380 senior port executives present at the Vancouver Convention Centre waterfront venue in Canada.

Among the six winners, Northport (Malaysia) Bhd, one of the two terminals of Port Klang, was announced as Award recipients for Health Safety and Security for its journey towards HSE excellence. It is the first award for a Malaysian port since the World Ports Sustainability Program began in 2018 and coincides with Port Klang Authority General Manager Captain K.Subramaniam's presidency of the International Association of Ports & Harbors.

Captain Subra, as he is known to the world's maritime community, commented: "I am so proud that one of our terminals in Port Klang has received global recognition here in Vancouver. Their efforts in health, safety and security have already received several industry awards, but for them to win like this on the world stage is really something special". The award was received by Northport's CEO, Dato Azman Shah Mohd Yusof.

Northport (Malaysia) Bhd formulated a strategic roadmap to operate its business activities to the highest level of Health, Safety and Environment (HSE) standards in their journey towards achieving HSE excellence. Their journey started with the 'Transformation' phase in 2012 to promote mindset and behavioural change. In 2016, the focus was shifted to 'Effective Implementation' to enforce all the actions towards achieving HSE goals. In 2019, Northport embarked on 'Sustenance and Continuous Improvement' to strengthen the best HSE practices among our stakeholders. Finally, the 'Business Resilience and Continuity' phase was enforced as of 2020 to seal their commitment towards business continuity management.

The Awards were adjudicated by an independent expert jury as well as the voting public which accounted for 30% of the total scores.

IAPH Managing Director Patrick Verhoeven commented: "With projects from 26 different countries this year, we are delighted to see that such a diverse group of winners have been selected from the Americas, Europe, Asia and Oceania by the jury and voters. We sincerely congratulate Northport Malaysia and their team."

The Sustainability Awards ceremony was held in conjunction with IAPH's World Port Conference in Vancouver, Canada with over 400 delegates attending the 3-day event. Themed 'Close the Gaps', the conference saw industry experts coming together to discuss the challenges and technological breakthroughs in the ports sector with emphasis on sustainability through good practices based on efficient and clean energy, digitalisation and resilience.
